1. A thorough investigation of the Isle of Pines has determined that no troops have been or are being trained there for the rumored invasion of the Dominican Republic.
2. There are no "pineapple plantations" on the island which could serve as headquarters for a revolutionary group. An individual by the name of John Amon Wilkins owns a small plantation on which about fifty pineapple plants are grown for Wilkins' personal use.
3. Aircraft frequently fly low over Wilkins' plantation. [REDACTED] Comment. It is believed that the explanation for the unusual air activity over the plantation is the fact that the plantation is used as a nudist camp.)
